Words of Wisdom

Imagine for a moment that life is like a book. Each day gives us a new page. Some pages are exciting. Some are difficult. Some are filled with mistakes we wish we could erase.

But here's the important part:

You cannot change the pages that have already been written.

You can only decide what you write next. Many times, we spend so much energy thinking about what went wrong yesterday that we forget we still hold the pen today.

Maybe you failed a test. Maybe you lost a friend. Maybe something didn't go the way you hoped.

That chapter may have been hard. But one bad chapter does not mean the whole story is bad. The strongest people are not the ones who never fail. They are the ones who keep writing their story even after difficult pages.There is a saying: "Every day is a new beginning."

Powerful, isn't it?Because it reminds us that we always get another chance. Another opportunity. Another blank page.

The person you become tomorrow is shaped by the choices you make today.So be kind. Be curious. Work hard. Help others. And never be afraid to turn the page and start again.Remember this:

Your story is still being written. Make it a story that makes you proud.
